Mongolia

Situated between Russia and China, Mongolia has a cultural combination of Russian communism and Buddhist beliefs, with unique customs mixed in between. It is one of the last places on the planet where nomadic life is still a tradition. Gers, the traditional portable felt tent, can be seen not only in the vast countryside but also on the outskirts of cosmopolitan Ulaanbaatar. There are many differing landscapes to see from the sprawling dunes of the Gobi desert, to the pristine water of Lake Khövsgöl, all the way to the snow-capped mountains of Bayan-Olgi in the West. Experience this unique destination in June 2015!

25 minutes for individuals to present material about a specific topic.

Round table sessions

15 minute sessions that allow for conversations and sharing among participants that address a topic within an area of focus.
